THE IMPORTANCE OF COMPLEX COURTS

Brian Kabateck and Ronald Karz wrote an article for the Los Angeles Daily Journal on August 26 about the value of Complex Courts in California and elsewhere.

!At a time when budgetary considerations are leading to court staff furloughs, dark days, and outright elimination of some departments or divisions, complex courts have now been a proven method to advance the cause of judicial economy," according to Kabateck and Karz. "Complex courts excise the logjam of cases that stifle the dockets of other courts. Even when budgets are tight, allocating funds for expansion and longevity of the program would only make sense."
