

NEW YORK TIMES
March 14, 2008

A SECOND ACT FOR DESTINATION CLUBS

In an article on the challenges facing destination clubs, The New York Times quoted Brian Kabateck, the Kabateck Brown Keller LLP attorney representing 571 former customers of a failed club. Kabateck sued Abercrombie & Kent, which had licensed its name to Tanner & Haley, the operators of the failed club. "This club should never have failed," Kabateck said.